Wells presented the application details that were submitted for their proposal. B. Wells stated that the company is proposing two different options. Option 1 includes 1,200,000 square feet across 4 buildings. Option 2 includes 900,000 square feet across two buildings. Both options require 60 acres, 250 MW of power, 10,000 GPD of water/wastewater. Presentation – Sheila Eigenbrod – S. Eigenbrod provided an overview of the special projects that are in process, including the ACT WorkKeys and Work Ready Communities. There are three assessments that measure applied math, literacy and workplace documents. When students take this test, they earn an NCRC, which is a national credential that demonstrates an individual's skill level to an employer. It helps an employer identify what skills an individual is entering the workforce with and how to best upskill them or identify additional support and training that may be needed to be successful. There are 85 companies in Genesee County that are supporting the WorkKeys program and many of the schools in Genesee County are participating as well. C. Suozzi and S. Eigenbrod recognized the need to expand this initiative to the GLOW region for an even greater impact on workforce development. S. Eigenbrod concluded her presentation by highlighting a few exciting initiatives that engage educators and students in the conversation of workforce development. For example, a career roadmap has been essential when going to events with students. It shows students the locations of schools for training, the major industries, and the resources available to them locally. The “Wheel of Destiny” and prizes have also been successful at student-focused events. The career checklist on the GCEDC website is another great resource for students.

S. Eigenbrod (GCEDC Workforce Consultant), M. Licitra (Stream Data Centers), C. Space (Stream Data Centers), C. Rodriguez (Stream Data Centers), and B. Wells (Stream Data Centers) left the meeting at 4:46 p.m.
